Seabees

A log road is made through the jungle mud on Rendova Island. Coconut palms felled along the route served as a ready supply of road building material. Heavy artillery of the Marines was carried over this road to a point where it was in range of the Jap stronghold at Munda.

The History of the Seabees

Aside from their motto—"Construimus Batuimus" (We build, we fight)—there is nothing classical about the Seabees. This newest branch of the Navy, the Seabees—262,000 strong—is composed of the toughest, most resourceful and energetic bunch of builders, dockwallopers, repair men, and anti-boobytrap operators this war has seen. As such, the Seabees are something of an anomaly in the ceremonies and traditions of the Navy.

But old traditions are somewhat foreign to this outfit of horny-handed, cussing, gun-toting construction workers. Not young themselves—their average age is around 28—the Seabees have built a lusty new tradition of their own. "Can Do" is the Seabee watch word from the Arctic wastes of the Aleutians to the steaming jungles of the southwest Pacific, from the central Pacific to the Atlantic.

A Seabee and his heavy bomber (bulldozer) at work in a South Pacific jungle. Notice the fallen coconuts.

Equipped to work AND fight, this Seabee leads the disembarking procession down the gangplank on the arrival of a transport at a South Pacific port.

This war's two-ocean Navy and its air arm are impotent without their global girdle of bases, and an island remains useless until it has been transformed into a base. Without the back-breaking work of the Seabees, there would be fewer front-page stories of Jap flotillas or aircraft sent to watery graves. Never has any Navy been called on to scramble from island to island to set up advance base after advance base with which to attack the enemy; for a large-scale attack is impossible unless there are well-equipped suitable bases from which to operate.

Incidentally, the Seabees, too, have their heroes. The name of Aurelio Tassone is largely unknown, yet this 28-year-old ex-state-road bulldozer operator performed one of the most ingenious heroic feats of the war. During the Treasury Island landings in the Solomons, he roared down the ramp of an LST in his 20-ton bulldozer to attack Jap snipers in a coconut-log pillbox. Using the steel blade of the bulldozer as a shield, he charged the pillbox, dropping the blade when he was virtually upon the Japs. The bulldozer literally swept the pillbox from its foundations and buried the 12 Japs in the debris. There are many other such stories.

The Navy learned many lessons at Wake, Bataan, Corregidor, and Guam, among them that unarmed civilian construction workers, though willing, could not be expected to pitch in and defend what they built. As an outcome, the first Seabee regiment, consisting of some 3,300 officers and men, was authorized on December 28, 1941.

Navy ratings were offered to skilled construction workers to give up highly paid civilian jobs and volunteer for service with the Seabees. From the ranks of 59 different building trades, men began to answer the call—veterans of the last war eager to get their licks in, men with large families eager to do their bit, blacksmith, crane operators, plumbers, oilers, electricians, welders.

Before long, because the volunteers included many men in their forties (the age limits were set at 17 to 50), the Navy began to call the Seabees "Grandpops." However, events have shown that those "grandpops" had the stuff and are one of the best parts of the Navy.

were available for the first Seabees, because the program was organized so quickly. The first Seabees were sent overseas under-equipped. Typical of the early phases of the war when the whole country was so unprepared, these men of the construction battalions called themselves "confused bastards." By the spring of 1942, however, Seabee training camps were being set up.

For the past year or so, the Seabee "boot" has been given eight to 12 weeks of intensive training. He has learned close and extended order drill like an infantryman. He has learned to run a hellish obstacle course complete with pyramids, water hazards, dugouts, gun emplacements. He has learned marksmanship and use of the bayonet.

Parks and the other Seabee camps are equipped with schools for nearly every building skill. In the machine shop the Seabee learns how to do repair work which will fall to him overseas. He becomes familiar with the types of bulldozers he will operate in clearing an airplane landing strip or a barracks site. He has met his versatile all-purpose mechano set, the pontoon gear.

The over-all Seabee organization is broken down

Ships tied up for days, even weeks, were perfect targets for enemy attack. This situation was relieved only by the arrival of hook-slinging Seabee specials, who on one recent occasion handled 31 ships with a total of 61,891 tons of freight in the remarkable time of 23 days. Today Seabee specials are getting ships unloaded and turned around days ahead of old schedules.

The third type of unit is the Seabee maintenance unit. Today, when a construction battalion has completed the work of building a base, it is generally relieved by a maintenance unit. A battalion in miniature of 275 men and officers, the maintenance units defend what their mates have built, repair and improve and where necessary finish left-over projects.

The fourth type of unit is little known but extremely important—the Seabee Marine detachment. In order to release fighting Marines on a hazardous landing from the specialized job of running equipment ashore, a Seabee Marine detachment is attached to each Marine division. These Seabees wear Marine uniforms, and as an integral part of the Marines in landing and fighting operations, they not only do the regular job of a construction battalion, but form important Marine combat units as well.

The fifth type of unit, the demolition unit, handles the man-killing job of destroying obstructions and traps, placed to hinder beach landings. These units, made up of one officer and four men each, many of them former "hard rock men," have undergone a special toughening-up. They have been coached in the uses of dynamite. They have been taught how to destroy bridges, mine fields, roads, barbed wire entanglements and docks. They have learned to lay mine fields and booby traps and how to detect and dismantle the enemy's. They work on the land but they also work under sea.

A Seabee goes to work on Tarawa after the Marines had wrested it, with much bloodshed, from the Japs.

Before the first assault wave lands, Seabee demolition units are at work, often in the dead of night, unearthing from the sea near the beach "horn scullies," those upended and sharpened rails placed in V formation which can rip the bottom out of an LCT.

The demolition units know how to clear the harbors choked with our own and enemy debris. Because they know how to use explosives under water, the demolition of a sunken ship is a comparatively simple job for them. They are also skilled in placing explosives alongside a grounded ship in such a way that the suction which holds it is broken, thus enabling tugs to extricate it.

The Seabee's Island X is everywhere, from Iceland to Asia. But a list of X's tells nothing of the obstacles overcome and the skill and ingenuity shown by the fighting Seabees. At Attu and Kiska, the Seabees were among the first to land. There they swung from ropes in a driving rain to chisel footholes in the solid rock of steep cliffs in order to construct a tract for a traveling carriage. Before the last assault boat had landed, the Seabees were at work replacing poorly constructed Jap installations. In the teeth of gales, bottomless tundra, sleet, snow, and fantastic williwaw storms, they hacked landing strips out of solid rock in record time. Swampy tundra gave way to smooth hard roads. Seabees dove into icy waters to erect wharves and docks. They worked in short spurts in water up to 108 feet deep, and so cold that hose carrying air to them frequently froze. For many Seabees, there was never a three-day period when they were not in the bone-chilling water.

Seabee battalions have been in with the assault waves on almost every amphibious operation in the South Pacific. They attack the job of hacking airfields out of the island jungles with assurance. Often these airfields were completed in days instead of weeks. On Munda, for example, the bomb-ravaged Jap field was put into usable condition in eight days. On Tarawa, the airstrip which hours before had been a major threat to the U. S. position in the Pacific, was put into shape for U. S. planes by the time the last Jap had been exterminated.

In other theatres of the war, the Seabees have been equally active. They were the first American detachment to land in Africa. They were in the first wave at Casablanca. As the U. S. and British forces rolled eastward, the Seabees rolled with them. The Seabee demolition units were out in front blasting barbed wire entanglements, locating and detonating booby traps and land mines. They built housing and hospital facilities. Water supply and purification were also in their hands.

Seabees were in the vanguard at Sicily and at Salerno. With the invasion forces under a hell of fire from the shore batteries, enemy bombers, and tiger tanks which blasted men and equipment to bits on every side, the Seabees unloaded thousands of pieces of equipment, cleared space for dressing stations, blasted barbed wire entanglements and took part in the fight. Within two days they had turned the bloody beach of Salerno into a temporary base of operations.

Seabees landed in France with the first of the assault forces.

Seabees have improvised materials, tools, and parts wherever they have been stationed. Mahogany and teakwood have been used to build the humblest sheds and shelters. Coke bottles have been used as insulators when a power line had to be extended. Empty gasoline drums have been drafted for a variety of uses—roofing, shoring, drainage systems, shower baths, culverts, ovens, grills, trusses, baffles, piping, and even canoes.

In the midst of a world dedicated to destruction, the Seabees are busy building, repairing, salvaging, and fighting to maintain what they have wrested from the jungle and the waste. When victory comes, we believe that it will be in no small part due to the achievements of the fighting Seabees.

Seabees rush materials aboard ship for the voyage to Cherbourg, France. There the Seabees helped British and U. S. Army units in restoring the harbor to Allied shipping.

37TH U. S. NAVAL CONSTRUCTION BATTALION

SHOEMAKER, CALIFORNIA

Officers and Men of the 37th Battalion:

Among men being trained for participation in World War II were those who as civilians were contractors, tradesmen and engineers in construction fields. Upon completion of prescribed training programs, such a group boarded a "ship" commissioned the "37th U. S. Naval Construction Battalion," whose mission it was to mark an essential chapter in a new volume of naval history—construction of vital installations in combat.

With 23 months of foreign duty, the battalion in the charges of Commander C. A. Whyte and Lieutenant Commander R. T. Young, executed its first mission in a manner reflecting credit to the abilities of its crew.

Though the crew of the "ship" be now nearly a third replaced, all hands are expected to extend the loyalest efforts in furthering the enviable record of the 37th Battalion. It is a privilege to share a position of responsibility among you.

This book will serve as a reminder of incidents and friends which have been a part of your life abroad.

THE STORY OF THE FIRST MISSION OF THE 37TH BATTALION

The 37th United States Naval Construction Battalion was commissioned in October 1942, composed as a typical construction battalion of men who, as civilians, ranked from skilled tradesmen to professional engineers in construction fields, Commander C. A. Whyte as Officer-in-Charge. To develop the necessary rapid transition from civilian to military life, enlisted men, as naval recruits, were taught the rudiments of drill, seamanship, and naval regulations, traditions and customs at Camp Endicott, Rhode Island, while officers were being indoctrinated at Norfolk, Virginia.

Soon after commissioning, the battalion departed from Camp Endicott for Norfolk to prepare for embarkation from the United States. In December, the battalion boarded the S. S. GEORGE CLYMER, while all types of construction equipment were being loaded aboard ships to accompany the battalion. On the 17th the small convoy steamed out through Hampton Roads, taking the battalion on its first mission.

In the Caribbean Sea, the convoy encountered a raging storm, a severe initiation for the men on their first ocean voyage. Since the time was during the height of Nazi submarine attacks in the Caribbean, further excitement was experienced when a U-boat surfaced and crash dived ahead of the convoy.

Christmas day the convoy reached the Panama Canal Zone, where the men received an introduction to the abominable tropical climate. Native scenery and operations of Canal locks were of interest.

Two weeks later aboard the GEORGE CLYMER, King Neptune conducted initiation ceremonies to the "Shellback Society" for the many men who were making their first crossing of the equator.

After 34 days of sailing, the sounding of general quarters indicated the convoy was at last entering the mine fields protecting the harbor at Noumea, the port and principal city of the French island of New Caledonia. After disembarking, the battalion camp was established several miles north of Noumea proper. In February, C Company was detached from the body of the battalion when it was ordered to Ile-Nou to construct an aircraft engine overhaul base. While in New Caledonia, the 37th Seabees completed such projects as the Naval Supply Depot at Megenta Bay, Naval Ammunition Depot, MOB No. 5 and MOB No. 7 hospitals, and the remodeling of a French barracks building for Com SoPac Headquarters, all of which entailed an enormous amount of earth moving, roadwork, erection of buildings, and utility systems. Shortages of required materials and spare parts for equipment called for exercising typical Seabee ingenuity to complete the projects within the limited scheduled time.

In August of 1943 the battalion reassembled and was brought to full complement in preparation for the move "up front." On the 28th the battalion loaded aboard the USS PINCKNEY, an auxiliary hospital ship, and the liberty ship STEPHEN M. WHITE and sailed for Guadalcanal, where a temporary storage yard and camp of pup tents was established. It was there that the battalion experienced its first Japanese bombing, although it was minor. Due to the scarcity of water, the value of training in water discipline aboard ship was realized.

On the 11th of September, the battalion commenced loading operations aboard LST's and LCI's, destination, Ondonga, New Georgia.

One LST and one LCI proceeded directly for the landing at Ondonga, which was hampered by the running aground of the LST. The remainder of the battalion landed at Munda where gear and supplies were transferred to smaller landing craft to facilitate the landing at Ondonga.

Ondonga was a large natural obstacle to construction—dense jungle growing from a mud bog. Although the battalion was subjected to bombing and artillery fire for three weeks, two greater elements to combat during construction were the mud and limited time. In conjunction with the 82nd Seabees, the battalion, by February, had completed 20 miles of roadway, two fighter strips complete with several miles of taxiways, hard stands, and revetments, gun emplacements and control tower, sawmill and several camps. Building airstrips and roads required the removal of all mud to the natural coral surface, then filling to grade with compacted crushed coral. While at Ondonga, the battalion also salvaged a PBY flying boat which had been damaged by landing in shallow water. Lt. Commander Young became "Skipper" of the battalion, succeeding Commander Whyte, who was promoted to Officer-in-Charge of the 22nd Construction Regiment.

Following completion of new projects at Ondonga, the battalion loaded and embarked in three echelons for the invasion of the Green Islands. While en route, the convoy was attacked by Jap aircraft without casualty to the battalion. The first echelon of the battalion landed on Green immediately following the assault of the New Zealand Third Division, who were annihilating Japanese troops on the islands.

Fourteen days after landing, the first plane landed on a 5,000-foot fighter strip of coral. By July the dense jungle of Green Islands had been transformed into 40 miles of roadway, fighter strips, a 7,000-foot bomber strip with taxiways and hard stands, seaplane ramps, fuel docks, and camps for Army, Navy, and Marine units. Also erected was a large steel tower for a radar installation.

THE 37TH BATTALION AT CAMP PARKS

In December, 1944, the men returned from the 30-day overseas leave.

Comdr. K. M. West, formerly "skipper" of the 5th and 10th Battalions, succeeded Lt. Comdr. Young who was ordered to Davisville.

Under the supervision of the Camp Parks Military Training Dept. the men were given a "refresher" training consisting of a review of the principles of protection against chemical warfare, disposal of unexploded ordnance, pack rolling, camp sanitation, warfare swimming and close and extended order drills.

Nearly every man was sent to some specialized school of the Camp Parks Technical Training Department where he was trained for such work as rock crushing, water purification, pontoon bridge building, diving, mosquito control and the operation of earth moving equipment.

To increase the combat efficiency of the battalion certain men were trained in the use and maintenance of special and heavy weapons. One entire week was devoted to firing carbines on the rifle range.

For several weeks the battalion stood by in the capacity of a riot squad for duty in the bay area.

Although only practice alerts were called, two companies were always ready at a moment's notice.

In February the battalion was filled to its authorized complement with a draft of seamen from Davisville.

The training program was climaxed when the battalion hiked 15 miles to Camp Diablo for a week's practice in extended order maneuvers and camp guard, using outposts and interior guards. Each company hiked to the summit of Mt. Diablo, the highest peak within 150 miles.

While at Camp Parks, the battalion participated in four regimental reviews, one in which was received a special commendation from Captain Wilson, CEO in C.

Although the training program was rigorous the men enjoyed the opportunity for the time with their families, others, for the fine available recreational facilities.

In April, the men were granted pre-embarkation leaves, after which final preparations were made in expectation of orders to "Shove Off" soon. Men were given complete dental treatments and it was insured that each man had a complete sea bag, dog tags and I. D. card.
