NARRATIVE

The multipurpose amphibious assault ship USS KEARSARGE (LHD 3) began 2003 with short-notice orders to be deployed with only 72 hours notice as the flagship for Amphibious Task Force EAST (ATF-E), RDML Michael P. Nowakowski, along with six other Atlantic Fleet ships: USS BATAAN (LHD-5), USS SAIPAN (LHA-2), and USS PONCE (LPD-15), based at Naval Station Norfolk and USS ASHLAND (LSD-48), USS PORTLAND (LSD-37) and USS GUNSTON HALL (LSD-44), based at Naval Amphibious Base Little Creek.

Two days after receiving the order to deploy Jan. 9, 1,100 Marines from the Second Marine Expeditionary Brigade (2D MEB) boarded the ship in Norfolk. KEARSARGE deployed Jan. 12 and arrived off Onslow Bay, N.C., safely loading 1,980 tons of equipment and 24 aircraft in only two days. Additional troops joined the ship during the onload.

By Jan. 17 KEARSARGE was headed across the Atlantic Ocean. The ship completed the transit across the Atlantic, through the Mediterranean Sea, the Suez Canal and the Red Sea, across the Gulf of Aden and into the Arabian Gulf in a little over a month. Once there, KEARSARGE and the rest of ATF-E joined Amphibious Task Force WEST, forming Task Force Five ONE, the largest amphibious force assembled in decades.

The ship began offloading elements of the 2D MEB's Marines at Kuwait Naval Base on Feb. 15, debarking approximately 1,300 Marines and tons of equipment, including Light Armored Vehicles (LAV), trucks and artillery using Assault Craft Unit FOUR's Air Cushion Landing Craft (LCAC).

Following the offload, the ship assumed the role of consolidated Heavy Lift Ship for the task force, providing sea basing for 16 CH-53E Super Stallion helicopters.

A day after the start of Operation Iraqi Freedom on March 20, Marine Heavy Helicopter Squadron 464 (HMH-464) was called upon to support an emergency re-supply mission. The squadron, based on KEARSARGE, was tasked with delivering ammunition to elements of the 11th Marine Artillery Regiment, which was providing an umbrella of protection for advancing coalition forces.

The ship was called to flight quarters shortly after midnight, and within two and a half hours the squadron's CH-53E helicopters were airborne and headed to the Kuwait-Iraq border.

KEARSARGE also served as a primary Casualty Receiving and Treatment Ship (CRTS). The ship boasts a medical capability second only to the Navy's two dedicated hospital ships, making it ideally suited for the task of treating critically sick or injured personnel.

Though KEARSARGE was at war, there was still time for recreation. The ship held several ship-wide "Big Bucks Combat Bingo" contests, as well as other fundraisers; the profits went to the Navy and Marine Corps Relief Society fundraising drive. In all, KEARSARGE's Sailors and Marines raised $33,511 for the cause, more than any other ship within SURFLANT.

The ship also made two brief visits to Bahrain. Though it was a working port, the crew had the opportunity to spend a few hours off the ship and relax.

Master Chief Petty Officer of the Navy MCPON(SS/AW) Terry D. Scott visited KEARSARGE April 18 as part of a whirlwind tour of ships in the Arabian Gulf. After meetings with the ship's leadership, MCPON Scott was escorted to a packed Hangar Bay for an All Hands Call. He began by "pinning" 12 warfare qualifications on newly qualified Enlisted Surface and Aviation Warfare Specialists. He then addressed the crew, emphasizing the importance of the Navy's mission in Operation Iraqi Freedom and what it means for both the American and Iraqi peoples.

"They have a future, when they didn't have much of one before," he said. "That's what you've accomplished here in the last couple of months. That's your contribution to history."

President George W. Bush announced the end of major combat operations in Iraq May 1, and by May 6 KEARSARGE began backloading the 2D MEB's Marines and equipment. The evolution, which included a meticulous agricultural inspection of every vehicle and piece of equipment that went ashore, took 12 days.

KEARSARGE, along with the other ships of ATF-E, transited the Strait of Hormuz and departed the Arabian Gulf May 21, and began the long voyage home.

On Memorial Day, May 26, KEARSARGE and the 2D MEB honored the 23 Marines from the Brigade who lost their lives during Operation Iraqi Freedom with a solemn service on the ship's flight deck that included a 21-gun salute.

As the ship steamed through the Red Sea, KEARSARGE was tasked to provide support for President Bush's historic summits in Sharm el-Sheik, Egypt, and Aqaba, Jordan. While in the Gulf of Aqaba, Commanding Officer Capt. Terence McKnight and the 2D MEB's Commanding General, Brig. Gen. Richard Natonski, were invited to Sharm el-Sheik to meet the President.

Before the order came to change course and head for the Gulf of Aqaba, KEARSARGE was due to transit the Suez Canal and visit the Mediterranean port city of Valletta, Malta, where the crew would have had a few days off. It would have been the first liberty port of the deployment. Despite the port call's cancellation, the crew remained upbeat and ready to serve the Commander-in-Chief.

Completing that mission, KEARSARGE set course for the Suez Canal, transiting the historic, 101-mile long waterway for only the second time in the ship's history.

While transiting the Mediterranean, KEARSARGE was once again called on to take part in another vital mission, this time off the coast of the war-torn West African country of Liberia in Operation SHINING EXPRESS.

KEARSARGE was diverted to the region at the request of the U.S. Ambassador to Liberia and by the direction of the Secretary of Defense to provide additional capability in case a large scale Non-combatant Evacuation Operation (NEO) became necessary.

"We were chosen for the mission because we had the most capable platform for helicopters and combat forces in the area," said McKnight. "The mix of aircraft, landing craft, medical capability and combat forces aboard made KEARSARGE uniquely qualified to get the job done."

Fortunately, after less than a week on station, a large-scale evacuation was not needed due to a U.S.-brokered cease-fire that stopped the fighting.

Following the ship's release from Operation SHINING EXPRESS, the long-awaited journey home finally resumed.

KEARSARGE ended its historic deployment by conducting a Tiger Cruise from Onslow Bay, N.C. to Norfolk. Almost 500 Tigers were provided the rare opportunity to spend a night at sea aboard a warship.

KEARSARGE returned to Naval Station Norfolk to family and friends on June 30, 2004.

Following homecoming, KEARSARGE spent the next few months preparing for its Board of Inspection and Survey evaluation, which was conducted on 20-24 October. The INSURV team was impressed with the ship and crew, and KEARSARGE passed with flying colors.

October also marked KEARSARGE's 10th birthday, which was celebrated with a lunch and cake-cutting attended by all of KEARSARGE's former commanding officers.

On 5 December, CAPT Luke R. Parent relieved CAPT McKnight as KEARSARGE's Commanding Officer.

Before beginning its holiday standdown period, KEARSARGE offloaded ammunition in Earle, N.J. in preparation for the ship's Planned Maintenance Availability in January 2004.

KEARSARGE and its crew hit several significant milestones during its historic deployment in support of Operation IRAQI FREEDOM.

- From Jan. 12 to its return in Norfolk, 170-days total, the ship steamed nearly 33,000 nautical miles and transited five different straits and canals... twice.
- The ship earned the right to fly the Enlisted Surface Warfare Specialist Pennant for the second year running. The award signifies the command's excellence in qualifying 100 percent of all eligible personnel for the warfare qualification. In all, 250 Sailors earned ESWS qualifications, while 204 earned Enlisted Aviation Warfare Specialist (EAWS) qualifications during the deployment.

- Among the ship's Officer corps, six qualified as Surface Warfare Officers, eight as Surface Warfare Medical Department Officers and four as Surface Warfare Supply Corps Officers.
- KEARSARGE's Sailors and Marines consumed 9,065 pounds of bacon and 20,621 dozen eggs. They ate an additional 34,135 pounds of frozen eggs and 76,083 pounds of potatoes. They washed it all down with 15,803 gallons of milk and 396,888 cans of soda.
- The ship's Post Office handled nearly a million pounds of mail.
- The Medical Department saw 2,280 patients and filled over 11,000 prescriptions. The ship's medical professionals also performed 6,600 immunizations, including Anthrax and Smallpox vaccinations.
- The Air Department oversaw 151 Harrier landings and 2,705 helicopter landings. Aircraft from KEARSARGE spent over 2,600 hours in the air. The department also issued nearly a million gallons of aviation fuel.
- KEARSARGE's weather forecasters launched 45 weather balloons and provided 253 five-day forecasts and 358 mission essential forecasts. They also presented 1,167 mission specific and tactical planning briefs.
- The Engineering Department produced over 19 million gallons of fresh water, while the Deck Department dropped the ship's anchor 13 times.
- During the deployment 125 enlisted Sailors advanced, while 11 of the ship's Officers were promoted. Two Chief Petty Officers advanced to Senior Chief Petty Officer. One Senior Chief Petty Officer advanced to Master Chief Petty Officer and four were selected to attend the Navy's Senior Enlisted Academy at Newport, R.I. One of the ship's Master Chief Petty Officers was also selected for the Command Master Chief program.
