The Naval History and Heritage Command announces the publication of the fifth and final hardbound edition of United States Naval Aviation. This two-volume set commemorates the centenary of United States naval aviation. The book was first published as United States Naval Aviation 1910-1960 and celebrated the first 50 years of naval aviation. Two subsequent editions added the decades of the 60s and 70s, and a fourth brought the chronology up to 1995. Previous editions have proved an invaluable first-stop research tool to aviation, naval, and military historians.

This edition breaks U.S. naval aviation history into two volumes: Chronology and Statistics. Both have been greatly expanded over the previous edition beyond simply including years not previously covered. New and expanded research make these the definitive volumes on U.S. naval aviation's first century.

Volume I Chronology:

- 13 chapters documenting the chronology of naval aviation
- A comprehensive seven-part index broken into topic-specific groups

Volume II Statistics:

- 39 chapters of charts and data in seven parts: Aircraft, Personnel, Units, Ships, Deployments, Operations, and Other Actions
