James Edward Jouett Rear Admiral

Born near Lexington, KY, Jouett commanded several ships during the Civil War and was severely injured during hand-tohand combat with a Confederate commander. After the war, he commanded the North Atlantic Squadron and led the ships that forced the opening of the Isthmus of Panama. Jouett retired in 1890 and a special act of Congress granted him full pay for the remainder of his life due to his excellent service.

Did You Know...?

Hemp grown in Kentucky was used to create ropes for rigging on Navy ships.

Dudley W. Morton Commander

Born in Owensboro, KY, Morton graduated from the Naval Academy in 1930. He commanded the submarine USS Wahoo (SS 238) during World War II and was responsible for sinking 19 ships totaling 55,000 tons. Morton and his submarine were known as "The One-Boat Wolf Pack." In 1943, Wahoo was attacked by Japanese antisubmarine forces and sank off the coast of Japan. Morton received the Navy Cross, three gold stars, and the Army Distinguished Service Cross.

William J. Crowe Admiral

Born in La Grange, KY, Crowe graduated from the Naval Academy in 1946. He served aboard multiple submarines, conducted the investigation on the treatment of the captured USS Pueblo crew, and advised the Vietnamese Riverine Force. He became the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in 1985 and thawed the Cold War through agreements with the chief of the Soviet General Staff. After retiring in 1989, Crowe served as the ambassador to the United Kingdom and taught at the Naval Academy.

Naval Ordnance Station Louisville

Naval Ordnance Station Louisville was commissioned in 1941 to design and manufacture ordnance for the U.S. Navy during World War II. Throughout the Cold War, the plant continued to provide materials and technology for weapons systems. The site is now operated by private contractors.

NOSC Louisville

The mission of Navy Operational Support Center (NOSC) Louisville is to generate mobilization readiness by providing administrative services, training support, and world class customer service to Reserve personnel in support of surge and operational requirements for the Navy, Marine Corps, and Joint Forces.
