

NAVAL HISTORY DIVISION

CAPTAIN DEANE E. CARBERRY
CIVIL ENGINEER CORPS, U. S. NAVY

A Civil Engineer, Deane Edwin Carberry received the degree of Master in Civil Engineering in 1931 from the California Institute of Technology. He was subsequently employed, 1931-1941, by the U. S. Reclamation Bureau, engaged in design work for the Boulder, Grand Coulee and Shasta Dams.

He was commissioned a Lieutenant (jg) in the Civil Engineering Corps of the U. S. Naval Reserve in November 1937 and from that time until early in 1941 was a member of the Inactive Volunteer Reserve in the Twelfth Naval District. Called to active duty, he reported in January 1941 as Resident Officer in Charge of Construction at the Naval Supply Depot, Oakland, California, where he was serving when the United States entered World War II. Continuing duty in California, he served from November 1942 until June 1943 as CEC Procurement Officer in the Twelfth Naval District.

Following four months' service as Officer in Charge of Construction and Public Works Officer at the Naval Air Station, Richmond, Florida, he was assigned, December 1943-October 1946, to the Aviation Facilities Division, Construction Department, Bureau of Yards and Docks, Navy Department. In connection with his work there he travelled to various facilities. Ordered next to Point Mugu, California, he had duty in connection with the basic planning and design for construction at the Naval Air Missile Test Center.

He was Assistant Base Development Officer on the staff of Commander Naval Forces, Marianas, from November 1948 until September 1950, after which he served as Public Works Officer at the Naval Air Station, Seattle, Washington. He next had duty, March 1953-August 1954, as Assistant Inspector General, On-Site Survey Division, Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, Navy Department. Assigned to the Ninth Naval District, Great Lakes, Illinois, he was Deputy District Public Works Officer and Deputy Officer in Charge of Construction until July 1956, when he became District Public Works Officer and Officer in Charge of Construction. In February 1958 he was designated Officer in Charge of Construction, Bureau of Yards and Docks Contracts, Madrid, Spain.

He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Society of American Military Engineers.
